Preface to the third edition

The world of electronic legal gazettes is marked by constant evolution. Following a number of advancements and changes, we are now publishing a new edition of this Directory only one year after the publication of the second edition. Changes which have occurred since spring of 2007 include:

- more electronic editions of legal gazettes have or will become legally binding and in some cases, the paper edition is being abandoned;
- new directors have been appointed, with some changes still pending, at the Official Journal of the European Union and the official gazettes of the Czech Republic, Germany, France, Italy, Lithuania, Malta, Portugal, Slovenia, as well as Switzerland, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Montenegro, Albania and Serbia.

The aim of this publication remains unaltered, namely to make general information on the access to legal gazettes available to a wider readership. The information has been updated to June 2008. If, despite our best efforts, you discover errors or omissions, please advise the Forum secretariat, so that the information may be corrected on the Forum website as well as in subsequent editions of this Directory.

Part I: Information on the European Forum of Official Gazettes

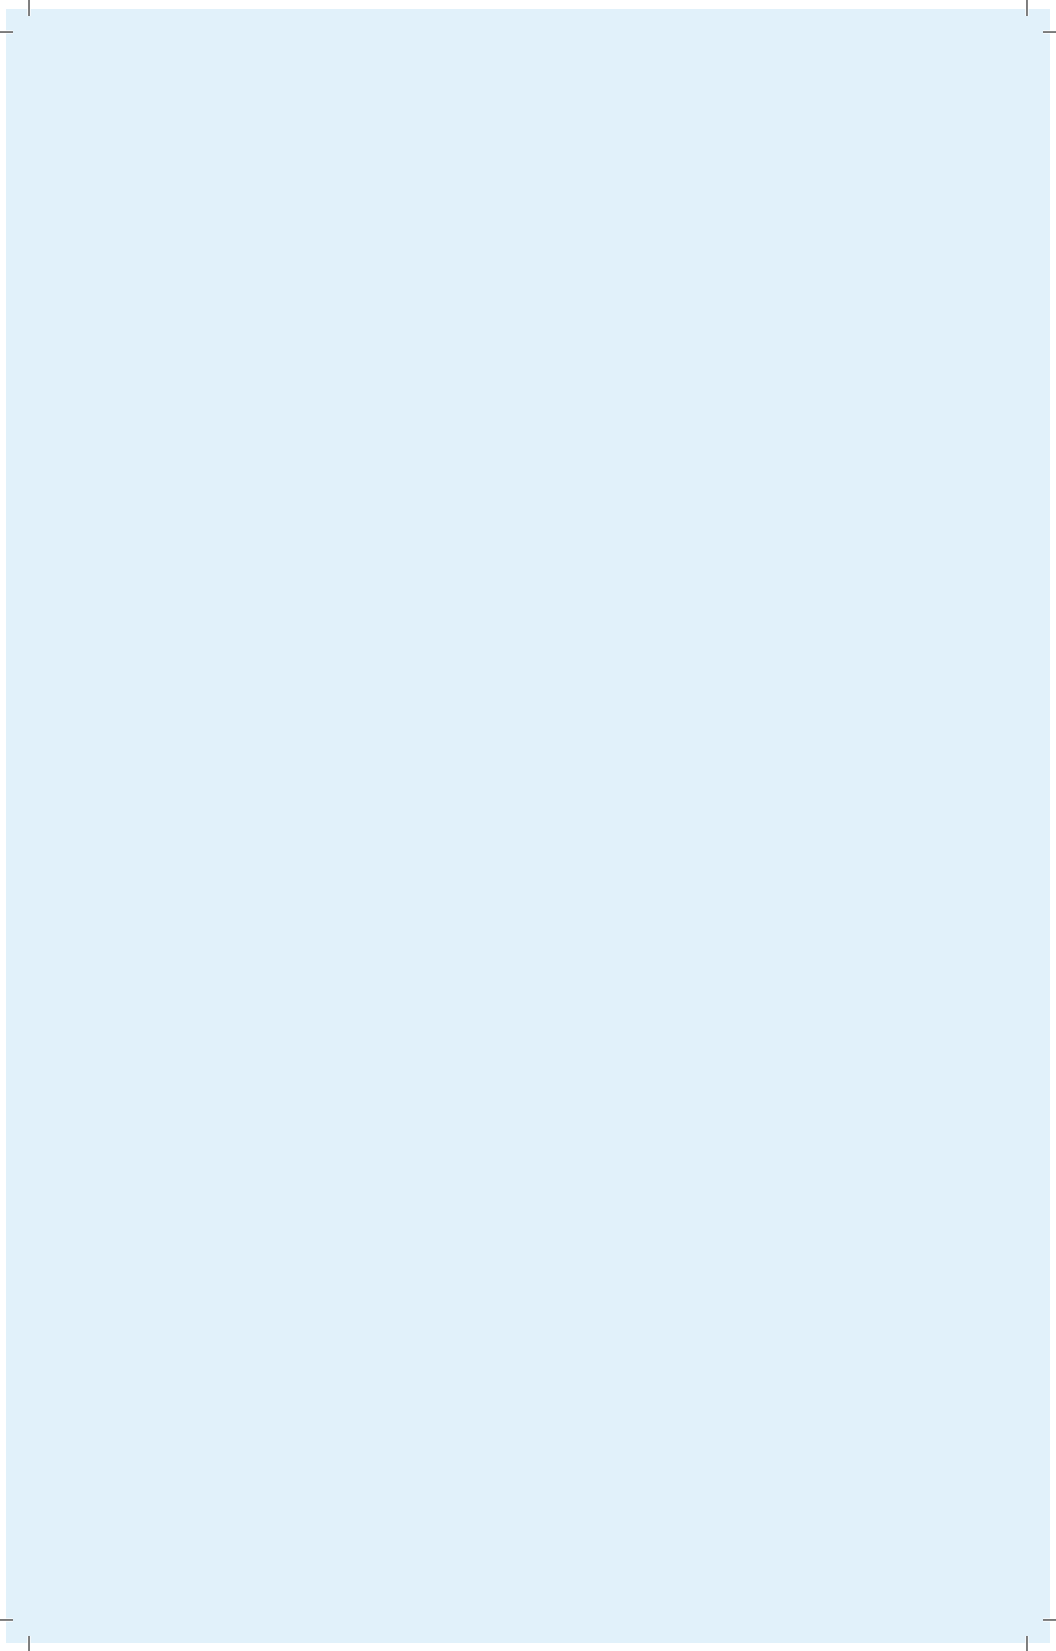

History and objectives of the Forum

Nearly all countries publish legislation, legal notices and other official announcements in the form of periodicals (official gazettes/official journals). In some countries, there is only one periodical containing all kinds of official information, whereas in others there are separate publications for legislation (legal gazettes) and for legal notices (official gazettes in a narrower sense). Countries with autonomous regions or a federal structure have not only one main legal and/or official gazette at the central State level but also gazettes at the regional or Länder levels.

Whatever the nature of the national gazette, there is one obvious trend which applies to nearly all of them, namely the ever-increasing introduction of new technologies in the production and dissemination of legal gazettes: data capturing at source, using the XML standard in the production and distribution of official gazettes, authentication and archiving of the electronic legal gazettes, to mention but a few of these aspects.

Official publishers have become aware of this tendency and realise that they face the same issues as their counterparts in other countries. This realisation gave rise to the idea of creating a common platform with a view to sharing experiences and exchanging information. Hence, the European Forum of Official Gazettes, an informal association of the national organisations responsible for the publication of legal gazettes in Europe, was founded in September 2004. At the outset, membership of the Forum was limited to EU Member States and candidate countries. Since September 2005, the Forum also welcomes observers from other European countries to its annual meetings and its working groups. The secretariat of the Forum is provided by the EU Publications Office in Luxembourg.

In line with its pragmatic objectives, the first task of the Forum has been to collect basic information on all official publishers of the EU Member States, candidate countries and countries admitted as observers. The relevant information is accessible on the Forum website (see page 16) and in the present Directory.

Statutes

Preamble

The directors of the official gazettes of the Member States of the European Union and of the Official Journal of the European Union:

- having participated in increasing numbers since 1998 in the symposia organised by the initiators of the project,
- desiring to work together to consolidate links between citizens, businesses and the public authorities of the Member States,
- keen to promote the dissemination and sharing of knowledge gained by each country by contributing to the coordination of strategies and operations of joint interest with a view to a common future, have decided, having regard to their institutional status, to form the European Forum of Official Gazettes (hereafter 'Forum') with a simple collegiate structure, the provisions of which are as follows.

Article 1 (composition)

The Forum comprises the official gazettes of the Member States of the European Union and of the candidate countries as well as the Official Journal of the European Union. Observers from third countries may be invited by the Forum to participate in its work.

Official gazettes with no legal basis for activity in the field of publication of legislation may be invited to join Forum working groups.

Article 2 (aims)

The Forum has the objective of improving the mutual knowledge of the technological progress made by participants and of comparing their respective strategies.

Article 3 (activities)

At least one meeting of the Forum shall be held annually, at which the organisations responsible for the publication of the legal gazette shall be represented by their Director. Delegations are limited to two representatives per country.

The Forum shall promote the pooling of information and experience which may be of general use and maintain an Internet site for the consultation of documents and for dialogue between its members.

The Forum may decide to set up working parties of experts.

Article 4 (organisation)

The Chair of the Forum and organiser of the annual meeting referred to in Article 3 is elected amongst the members of the Forum at the meeting preceding the one where he or she takes office. This determines at the same time the venue of the following meeting.

The Chair of the Forum is assisted by representatives of two other official gazettes, namely his or her predecessor and his or her successor as Chair.

Given its institutional position, the Official Journal of the European Union will act as secretariat for the Forum and the working parties. It is responsible for maintaining the Forum's Internet site and, at the request of the Chair, it distributes invitations to meetings, proceedings, minutes and other documents.

Article 5 (agenda)

At the end of each meeting, the main points of discussion planned for the following meeting will be presented by the Chair of the following meeting.

The final draft agenda shall be distributed at least one month before the meeting.

Article 6 (minutes of meetings)

Each of the members of the Forum may publish all or part of the proceedings without this being binding on the participants as a whole.

Any communication posted on the Forum's website must be translated into English so that it can be understood and used effectively.

Article 7 (amendments)

Proposals for amending these Statutes may be submitted to the Chair by delegations. On request of the Chair, the Secretariat shall submit the proposals to the members for adoption via written procedure for which 28 days must be allowed for consideration. If no agreement on the proposed amendments is reached, they shall be included on the agenda of the next Forum meeting and shall be discussed by the members present if the proposing delegation wishes.

Yes, distribution to the public has been carried out exclusively online since 1 January 2003. Only five paper copies of each gazette are produced (for the Ministry of Justice, the Belgian State Gazette, the National Library and the National Archive and one for microfilming). These five copies are considered authentic. In case of any challenge, the Ministry's copy is the reference copy. A free-of-charge helpdesk for facilitating access to the online version was created on 1 August 2005, and since 15 October 2005 all courts of first instance make paper summaries of the official gazette available for the public.
